he had amassed a snug fortune, remember ing the vicissitudes of his youth, he bent all his energies to providing for the education and elevation of the industrial classes. He was identified with the public schools of New York, but feeling that no common school system could supply a technological education, he determined more than forty years ago that, if his exertions were successful, he would establish in his native city an institute in which the working classes could secure that instruction for which he, when young and ambitious, sought in vain. This philanthropic desire resulted ultimately in the erection of the well known Cooper Institute. Besides this Mr. Cooper has interested himself and kas always taken an active part in promoting the best interests of his fellow men and aided in securing reforms in local government. Taking the character of the man it is somewhat singular that in the latter days of his life he used his influence for the advancement of the Greenback Party. He followed this political ignus fotus, until he was nominated for Président by that party in 1876. The total vote cast for him only amounted to 81,740. The defeat, however, did not cause any pangs, as he knew he led a hopeless cause. His life stands as an example of what perseverance and pluck can accomplish in the face of disadvantages and occasional defeat, and his methods and conduct can be safely copied by the youth of to-day who have ambitions like those which animated his breast. His career establishes as a verity the epigrammatical is somewhat singular that in -the tablishes as a verity the epigrammatical lines of Pope.

John Howard Payne's sister is buried at Lancaster, Mass., under a monument erected by John G. Palfrey, who was her schoolmate. Her name was Eloise, and her age thirty-one. The inscriptions are "She will be talked of but a little while, and, forgotten by society, will survive only in a few hearts, where the memory of such a being is immortal." "Sink into dust, frail covering of a purified spirit! Parent earth, receive thine own! God in Heaven, take her soul to Thee!"

Philologists say that the "Benty, meenty, minety, mo," and "Eny, meenty, mony, mike," which children use for counting in some of their games, and which were commonly considered gibberish, are in reality the sole survival of the language spoken by the earliest inhabitants of the British Islea.

Terrible Struggle for Life. A horrible and in some respects a re markable accident occurred this evening near Readville Station on the New York and New England Railway, a few mile from Boston. The draw-bar between the locomotive and the tender, on an out-going locomotive and the tender, on an out-going freight train, broke while climbing a heavy grade. The fireman, Francis Sturgis, aged twenty, fell into the gap, and in falling grasped the brake rod and was dragged for a quarter of a mile, his feet striking against the ties and wearing the flesh from the bones. He clung to the brake during the terrible period, in sight of the engineer, who witnessed the struggle for life without the power to render aid. He whistled for down brakes, but the brakemen did not respond, and it is alleged that they were not at their posts of duty. Finally, the poor fellow's strength giving out, he fell beneath the train and was killed.

A friend of mine has had her smile photographed. She got the idea from those pictures which, in a progressive series, showed the gait of a trotting horse; but the rise, progress and fail of her grin exhibits none of the surprising outlandishness that is to be seen in the stepping of a horse. It is pretty all the way through, and well she knew it, or she wouldn't have given the camera a show. She is not an actress who did it to exhibit her skill in grimacing; but a society belle, vain of her lovely and expressive face, and anxious to put its most charming aspect into an imperishable form.

Supt. of B. O. R. R. Co.'s Hotels, (Conductor on the Baltimore & Ohlo Raliroad for 28 years, and prevously a druggist), writes: "Gumberland, Md., December 17, 1881: I have used but one bottle of Peruna between myself and son. He had Diptheretic sore throat and is now well. As for myself, it has entirely relieved the duliness in my head, which has been of long standing—the result of Chronic Malaria. I never took anything in my life that gave me such great satisfaction. My wife is now taking it also." Ask your druggist for the "ills of Life," and how to cure them—a book.
